PERSONAL

E. C. Giltner left this afternoon for Seattle. Dr. W. A. Cusick went to Albany this morning. Squire Farrar went to Woodburn this afternoon. M. E. Pogue returned today from a trip to Marion. J. C. Fletcher, of McCoy, was appointed notary today. Henry Lang is in the city, having come up from Portland today. Adjutant-General B. B. Tuttle came up from Portland this morning. T. J. Sullivan, the tailor, removed to a new store on State street, next door to Cook Bros', second hand store. R. P. Young, J. H. Williams and Wm. Carlton, of Calhoun county, Iowa, have arrived in the city and will make their future homes in Oregon. Geo. I. Sargent, late secretary of the state board of horticulture, was in the city today. He is now a member of the David M. Dunne & Co. firm of Portland, who handle horticultural supplies. CITY LEVY.—The city council will have to hold a brief session right away to levy the city tax. The levy will probably be only eight mills. This may leave a small deficit, but it will form the basis of readjustment of salaries and expenses next year. At all events a light levy with even a deficit is preferable to high taxes this year. The big items of city expenses are $8000 interest and $5000 lights.

A PROPRIETOR.—Andrew Hansen has bought the Bush interest in the Churchill sash and door factory, and taken a place there as an active working proprietor. Mr. Hansen is one of Salem's most competent machine wood workers, having been with Ira Erb for eight years.

DISTRICT FAIR.—The Eastern Oregon fair report filed today shows $1500 received from the state treasury, and $1803.33 paid out for expenses. There is no report of gate receipts.

NOTES

From Live Dry Goods Peep e. We start out on the year 1906 to furnish the people of Salem and vicinity with a better store to trade in than ever before. Our aim, first of all, is to give satisfaction to our patrons, believing that a well-satisfied customer is our best advertisement. We keep no shoddy or worn-out goods, but clean, reliable merchandise, such goods as recommend themselves. This year we will carry a better stock than ever, and expect to do a larger business than in 1905. We do a cash business on close margins of profit. If you buy from us, you don't have to pay high prices to cover other people's bad debts. Our new spring stock of dress goods, clothing, hats and furnishings goods has begun to arrive. Call in and see them.

SOCIETY CHRONICLE

Local News of Social and Fraternal Events.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

In that oldest of all histories—the bible—woman stands out prominently in the procession of characters, and Sarah, Ruth, Esther, Delilah and the Marys are the incarnations of all the varied passions that move the world. The women of the present time are only as yet making their history. The mother of Washington and the heroine of Lexington will be better remembered in the centuries to come than they are now. It was a woman that put heart into the weary soldiers with the grandest war song ever written. It was a woman's taste in bunting that gave us the glorious stars and stripes, and it was for women, mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts that these same soldiers sang, and singing died. I believe that intelligence and a sense of freedom and equality with men does not unfit a woman for the cares of home and children; rather that contact with the world of thought and action widens her sympathies and strengthens her judgment. And her influence with her sons and daughters as they grow up is ten fold greater than that of the old-fashioned mother. She may be less confiding, less clinging, but more knowing. Let us educate our daughters not only to love, honor and obey their husbands but to have other aims in life than the timid, yielding, old-fashioned mother to whom a frown was as a blow, while a cross word saddened her for a week. Marriage need not necessarily be a failure. Like every high condition it is difficult of attainment; but it is so fine in its perfection that one success compensates for many non-successes. A woman's soul and mind must reach out and be an inspiration to her husband. Learn something of his affairs; interest yourself in his work. What you don't possess, cultivate. A husband soon ceases to care very much for a wife who is mentally greatly his inferior. Thackeray says, "Love is immeasurably above all ambition—more precious than wealth, more noble than fame. He knows not life who knows not that; he hath not felt the slightest faculty of the soul who hath not enjoyed it." While the new woman asks, "Is love alone worth living for—worth dying for?" Is it the only satisfying good we can grasp among the shifting shadows of our brief existence? In its various phases and different workings is it after all the brightest radiance known in the struggling darkness of our lives? And does love always satisfy? Men find their pay for living in various ways. Hope may lie to them, but they always believe her, nevertheless. The better things to come of which she tells all men become indeed the substance of the thing desired; that is, expectation is a constant joy and inspiration. The pay for this day's trouble and toil is in the reward which is expected tomorrow. That reward may never come but the hope remains, and so long as that remains, and so long as that lives it pays them to live that they may make money and command the power that money brings. If a truth it is that "man's love is of his life a thing apart," why should it be "woman's whole existence?" To what enormous toil and sacrifice the love and pursuit of money urge a great multitude of men until they become so absorbed in the exciting struggle as to almost forget the things that were once so dear to them; or at least forget to give expression to words or acts that mean so much to our own, given us to be good to. Often times they love dearly, yet live a stingy, miserly life in regard to their richest inward treasures, when a few words or deeds expressive of this love would make them both so much happier. And some women are so weak, so helpless, so self-sacrificing, requiring a strong and steady arm to lean upon. It is very difficult for either man or woman to go on believing in a love that never takes heed for the object loved. The greatest heroism I have ever found in human nature has been in the lives of women. The man who risks his own life to rescue some drowning creature is not so brave as many a wife who endures neglect, indifference, and even disloyalty from one who has sworn to be her protector; and sits through long, lonely evenings at home, looks alluring temptation in the eyes, and turns away, carrying a smiling face to the world. The physical pain, the heart-hunger, the lonely hours that make half the life of the average woman would, drive the average man to the insane asylum before he reached middle age. How much we might make of our family life if we only would of our social intercourse, of our friendships. How many kind words we could speak, how many hearts we could gladden. JOHN BROWN. Albany, Or., January 30, 1906.

SPECIAL PARISH MEETING.

A special meeting of the parish of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will be held in the Guild room this Thursday, evening at 7:30 o'clock sharp, to which all communicants of the parish and the friends of the church are cordially invited. The business of the meeting will be to make arrangements, if possible, to secure the services of a rector, and it is to be hoped that all will show their interest in the matter by being present on this occasion. The ladies of the Guild will prepare light refreshments, and a pleasant social occasion is assured. Let all who feel an interest in the church be sure to attend.

LADIES BOWLING CLUB.

Ten among the leading society ladies of Salem have organized a bowling club, and once each week meet at the bowling alley on Commercial street to indulge in the interesting and decidedly beneficial exercise. They enter into the sport with much enthusiasm, and it is a pleasant sight to see their lithe and graceful forms as the balls are sent rolling down the alleys. Those composing the membership of this club are: Mrs. I. L. Patterson, Mrs. E. B. Philbrook, Mrs. Hugh Thompson, Mrs. R. P. Boise Jr., Mrs. Henry Myers, Misses Ethel and Fay Thompson and Jessie Breyman. The club met and practiced this afternoon. It would be a fine exercise for many women, and it is to be hoped that other clubs will form, adopting an unrestricted style of dress for the occasion, and practicing at least once a week.

AFTERNOON WITH BROWNING.

A class of ten ladies met at the home of Mrs. Emily Philbrook on Court street Wednesday afternoon, giving consideration to selections from Browning. There are two classes composed of a different membership, each class meeting every two weeks. Such gatherings are of a very entertaining and beneficial character, and the example of these ladies might well be emulated by others, in a similar manner.

Mrs. John Minto is home from Portland.

Miss Rose Woodruff returned yesterday from a short visit in Portland.

Miss Belle Griffin went to Portland this afternoon, to remain several days.

Miss Clara Churchill returned to Woodburn today after a short visit at home.

Mrs. E. M. Lafore went to Jefferson today to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walters.

Mrs. F. R. Alexander returned to her home in Eugene today, after a short visit in Salem.

The New York Racket has only twelve fine, all wool, combination suits for ladies in stock. Price $2.35. Will close out balance for $1.75. 30-2t

Sousa as an Adapter and Arranger. [From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.] "I think Leader Sousa has the greatest faculty of any band leader I have ever seen for adapting all kinds of music to his brass instruments," said a local music dealer and composer last night. "I once heard Sousa and Count Lull, Mme. Scaletti's husband, discussing an old opera, the selections of which were all the time played on string instruments. The Count did not think Sousa could make use of a certain selection on this account, whereupon the great leader responded, laughingly: 'Why, this band can play anything.' Truer words never were spoken. It makes no difference whether the original is a death march or a church hymn, by his art of adaptation a transformation takes place, which makes it perfectly adapted to a brass band. This is a great art, and few possess it to the extent that Mr. Sousa does."

TAKEN HOME.—Three weeks ago last Monday, Drs. Cartwright and Mott performed a surgical operation on Martin Moritzen, of Estella Falls. The case necessitating the operation was an abscess on the shoulder blade, which was successfully treated. The young man had so far recovered that he was taken home today. W. H. Downing, the liverman, kindly provided a rig and Alfred Sauvain professed his services. While in Salem Mr. Moritzen was quartered with Mr. Sauvain, Sr., in East Salem.

LESLIE M. E. CHURCH.—Revival services this evening. Rev. C. M. Bryan will be present.

PLEASANT ENTERTAINMENT was given Thursday night by Miss Josie Watkins of the Oregon Institute for the Blind. It was held in the Guild room of the Episcopal church.

SALEM SCHOOL TAX.

Four Mills Voted at the Annual School Meeting.

The annual school meeting of the taxpayers of school district No. 24 was held at the council chamber Wednesday evening with Dr. W. H. Byrd, president of the board of directors, in the chair. There were nearly forty representative citizens present aside from the board of directors. School Clerk Scott Bozorth read the report and recommendations published in THE JOURNAL. John Q. Wilson moved that the report of the directors be approved and that a levy of four mills be made for the ensuing year. The motion was seconded by Eugene Breyman.

Herman Pohle expressed a fear that the proposed levy would not be sufficient and moved to amend by making it five mills. President Byrd explained that the district indebtedness had been cut down on a six-mill levy, but under a four-mill levy he thought no reductions of existing debt could be made, though he thought the district business could be carried on without creating further indebtedness.

Mr. Pohle's motion was not seconded and the original motion was carried unanimously. After a vote of thanks to the city authorities for the use of the council chamber the meeting adjourned.

VALLEY LOCAL NEWS.

The McKinley club held a very enthusiastic meeting last Saturday afternoon. They elected officers for the ensuing year, also six delegates to attend the meeting of Republican Clubs at Portland February 4th. The following are the names of the officers elected: Ed. T. Judd president; G. B. Cornelius and F. L. Pound vice president; D. W. Smith secretary. The delegates to Portland were Ed. T. Judd, H. C. Parter, Abner Lewis, H. A. Keen, Chas. Vaneyse, and G. B. Cornelius. The club is in a very healthy and growing condition.

IN THE POUND.—Three Jersey cows, belonging to E. V. Ryder, residing on the corner of Oak and Broadway streets, North Salem, were impounded Wednesday. They wandered inside the city limits and shortly afterwards the police officers rounded them up. Mr. Ryder released them by paying the necessary fee.
